

Access to Court Records

Effective Date:	Policy Code:
January 15, 2024	ACC-2
Scope of Application
Applies to:

Public
Provincial Court of British Columbia records

Purpose of Policy

To specify who has access to which types of court records, in accordance with any related legislative requirements.

The Court establishes the general guidelines governing access, and judges of the Court determine issues concerning access in individual cases where more specific direction is necessary.

For access to parts of the Court record that are not expressly addressed in this policy, an application must be made to the Court for an order permitting access.

Access to the Court's published reasons for judgment are available on the Court's website here.

Background Information

It is an established rule that our Court is open to the public, but that access to court records must be supervised by the Court to ensure that the ends of justice are not subverted by inappropriate disclosure. Curtailment of public access is only justified where there is a need to protect a social value of superordinate importance. For instance, broad legislative restrictions exist with respect to access to court documents in regard to matters involving youth in family and criminal proceedings. Consistent application of the following access policies by Court Registries across the province is expected by the Court.

Case law on the subject of disclosure of court records indicates that there are several broad policy considerations involved in access to court file documents. The presumption is in favour of public access and the burden of contrary proof lies upon the person who would deny the exercise of that right. Undoubtedly every court has a supervisory and protecting power over its own records. Access can be denied when the ends of justice would be subverted by disclosure or the judicial documents might be used for an improper purpose. See Nova Scotia (Attorney General) v. MacIntyre, [1982] 1 SCR 175. The constitutional principles of freedom of expression and the openness of courts are of crucial importance. Freedom of expression "protects listeners as well as speakers" which means that listeners and readers, as members of the public, have a right to information pertaining to public institutions and particularly the courts. This is significant in terms of media access to courts and court records. As noted in Edmonton Journal v. Alberta (Attorney General), [1989] 2 SCR 1326:

Here the press plays a fundamentally important role. It is exceedingly difficult for many, if not most, people to attend a court trial. Neither working couples nor mothers or fathers house-bound with young children, would find it possible to attend court. Those who cannot attend rely in large measure upon the press to inform them about court proceedings — the nature of the evidence that was called, the arguments presented, the comments made by the trial judge — in order to know not only what rights they may have, but how their problems might be dealt with in court. It is only through the press that most individuals can really learn of what is transpiring in the courts. They as "listeners" or readers have a right to receive this information. Only then can they make an assessment of the institution. Discussion of court cases and constructive criticism of court proceedings is dependent upon the receipt by the public of information as to what transpired in court. Practically speaking, this information can only be obtained from the newspapers or other media. It is equally important for the press to be able to report upon and for the citizen to receive information pertaining to court documents.

Timeliness is essential to ensure access to court files and documents. The ability of court staff to facilitate timely access can be affected by various factors. For example, where on-site storage is limited, some files may be transferred off site. By necessity, the time required for access to files and documents that are stored off-site will be longer than for files and documents stored at the courthouse. In addition, court staff must prioritize their responsibilities to ensure matters scheduled before the court are proceeding, that the needs of parties and witnesses are met, and that judicial direction is followed. Against this background, court staff must facilitate access to court files and documents as quickly as possible.

Policy

- 1. Access to Court Records for Adult Criminal Proceedings (and Traffic Court, as applicable)
- 1.1 The following policy provides direction regarding access to court record information in adult criminal proceedings (and Traffic Court, as applicable).

- 1.2 The manager or court administrator shall respond to a request for access to court records as quickly as reasonably possible. Noting the comments in the above policy statement, the expectation of the Court is that for routine access requests, there should be no significant delay in the public and the media gaining access to court records.
- 1.3 Members of the public may have access to case information through Court Services Online or at a public inquiry terminal at the registry where the case is being heard.

In cases of lengthy Informations, the first page(s) only may be placed in the public access file and a complete copy made on request. In the situation where multiple warrants were issued from one Information, all search warrants must meet the criteria before any of the copies are placed in the public access file.

A public access file will be maintained for copies of search documents (after a search and seizure has taken place and all other applicable access provisions have been met) and copies of sealing orders, after a judicial officer has determined that search warrant documents are available

		When transcripts are sought by Corrections Canada or the BC Parole Board and a publication ban is in place, they do not require a court order for access, but the transcripts so provided to Corrections Canada or the B.C. Parole Board must be marked and accompanied by a standard form letter describing the ban.

2. Access to Court Records for Youth Court Matters

2.1 The Youth Criminal Justice Act (YCJA) contains both a publication ban and a ban on disclosure of information contained in a record that would identify a young person dealt with under the Act (s. 118). That section provides as follows:

Except as authorized or required by this Act, no person shall be given access to a record kept under sections 114 [court records] to 116, and no information contained in it may be given to any person, where to do so would identify the young person to whom it relates as a young person dealt with under this Act.

Section 118 and certain other sections in Part 6 (Publication, Records and Information) of the YCJA also apply to proceedings respecting provincial offences alleged to have been committed by a young person, pursuant to s. 4(1) of the British Columbia Youth Justice Act.

- 2.2 In light of s. 118 and a purpose of the Youth Criminal Justice Act in protecting the privacy of young persons who fall within its provisions, Court registries will not provide public access to a youth court file other than to provide, when requested, the court file number for an individual, the next appearance date for the individual, and the custody status of the individual. Subject to the restrictions contained in the YCJA to protect the privacy of young persons, this policy, of course, does not limit the ability of members of the public and the media to attend open court proceedings in relation to youth matters.
- 2.3 As an exception, s. 119(1) of the YCJA contains a list of people who are entitled to receive court records for a specific period. The media and the general public have no right of access to these files but may apply to the Court for access to the information. A judge may grant access to information under the YCJA if she or he is satisfied that the person seeking access has a valid interest in the record and that access to the record is desirable in the interest of the proper administration of justice (s. 119(1)(s)(ii)). Even if a person is granted access to information under such an order, that person cannot further disclose the information unless authorized under s. 129. There are also time restrictions for access provided under s. 119(1) (see s. 119(2)).

2.4 The provisions of the YCJA restricting access to records do not apply to records relating to an offence for which an adult sentence was imposed if all appeals are completed and the result is still that an adult sentence is imposed (s. 117).

3. Access to Court Records for Family Matters

- 3.1 Rule 174(1) of the Provincial Court Family Rules provides that unless the court otherwise orders, only the following persons may search a court file under the Rules: a party to the court file; a lawyer, whether or not the lawyer represents a party, and including a lawyer for a child; a family justice counsellor; a person authorized by a judge; a person authorized in writing by a party to the court file or by the party's lawyer.
- 3.2 Despite para. 3.1 above, Rule 174(2) of the Provincial Court Family Rules provides that unless the court otherwise orders, any person may access the following information about a family case: the names of the parties as identified in the case; the case file number; the registry at which the court file is located; and the date the case was started.
- 3.3 Rule 8(15) of the Provincial Court (Child, Family and Community Service Act) Rules [BC Reg. 533/95] provides that, unless a judge orders otherwise, only the following may search a registry file respecting a matter under the Child, Family and Community Service Act: a party; a party's lawyer of record; a person authorized in writing by a party or by a party's lawyer of record; for the purpose of determining whether an application in Form 3.1 has been filed, the director responsible for service under Rule 6(6.1)(b), or section 50.02(2) of the Child, Family and Community Service Act, or the director's lawyer.
- 3.4 Rule 9(14) of the Provincial Court (Adult Guardianship) Rules [BC Reg. 30/2001], provides that only the following are entitled to search a registry file respecting a matter under the Adult Guardianship Act: a party, a party's lawyer, or a person authorized by a party, by a party's lawyer or by a judge.
- 3.5 Except as provided for in paragraphs 3.3 and 3.4 above, court registries will not provide public access to a court file respecting a matter under either the Child, Family and Community Service Act or the Adult Guardianship Act other than to provide, when requested, the court file number and location for that court file, unless otherwise ordered by the Court.
- 3.6 Regarding publication of matters that occur in family proceedings, section 3(6) of the Provincial Court Act provides as follows:

In relation to family or children's matters before the court, a person must not publish at any time anything that would reasonably be likely to disclose to members of the public the identity of the child or party.

4. Access to Court Records for Civil Small Claims Matters

- 4.1 Members of the public may have access to the court file at the registry where the case is being heard.
- 4.2 Members of the public may have access to specific court documents through Court Services Online. These documents include the Notice of Claim, Reply and Orders.
- 4.3 Members of the public may have access to case information through Court Services Online or at a public inquiry terminal at the registry where the case is being heard.
- 4.4 As with all information in a court record, access to exhibits is subject to the supervision of the courts and must be balanced against competing rights such as privacy interests. There is no automatic right of the public and media to access exhibits in Small Claims matters, many of which are confidential and filed by the parties under compulsion by reason of production and disclosure orders. Access may be sought by application to the Presiding Judge or to the Regional Administrative Judge (if there is no judge seized of the matter) of the Court in the location where the proceedings are or were held.

5. Sealed Files

5.1 No one may have access to a sealed court record or a sealed document within the court record unless the court makes an order allowing access.

6. Access to Digital Audio Recordings (DARS) of Proceedings

6.1 Proceedings in the Provincial Court are recorded by a Digital Audio Recording System (DARS). The following sections discuss listening to and obtaining copies of audio recordings.

Access Rules of General Application

- 6.2 Access by way of a copy, or by listening at a court registry, is only granted when ordered by the presiding Judge or presiding Judicial Justice (JJ) or, in that Judge's or JJ's absence, the Regional Administrative Judge or Administrative JJ, as the case may be, or a Judge or JJ assigned by the Regional Administrative Judge or Administrative JJ, as the case may be. This policy applies to the following:
 - 6.2.1 In-camera proceedings
 - 6.2.2 Sealed files
 - 6.2.3 Record Suspended/Pardoned files

6.2.4 YCJA proceedings

- 6.2.4.1 The young person, their counsel and Crown counsel may listen to the audio recording at the court registry unless the proceedings were sealed.
- 6.2.5 Publication bans (ban on publishing, broadcasting, transmitting)
 - 6.2.5.1 However, a person who was present or was entitled to be present in the courtroom for a proceeding covered by a publication ban is entitled to listen to the audio recording by attending at the court registry unless the proceedings were sealed.
 - 6.2.5.2 However, at this time, counsel of record are entitled to listen to the audio recording of adult criminal matters covered by a publication ban by way of a copy of the audio recording (see s. 6.3).
 - 6.2.5.3 Anyone listening to the audio recording of a proceeding is required to abide by the terms of any publication ban which may be in place. Although registry staff will try to notify the person wishing to listen to the audio recording of a proceeding of any publication bans or restrictions that may apply and will advise that publication, broadcast or transmission of the information contained in the court record could be an offence at law, it is the responsibility of the person who is listening to the audio recording to identify any publication bans or restrictions that may apply, and to comply with them. Failure to comply with the publication ban may result in serious sanctions including contempt of court proceedings.

6.2.6 Oral judgments and rulings

- 6.2.6.1 However, a person who was present or was entitled to be present in the courtroom when oral reasons for judgment were given is entitled to listen to the audio recording of oral reasons for judgment by attending at the court registry unless the proceedings were sealed.
- 6.2.6.2 However, at this time, counsel of record and accredited media are entitled to listen to the audio recording of oral reasons for judgment for adult criminal matters by way of a copy of the audio recording (see s. 6.3). 6.2.6.3 The audio recording of oral reasons for judgment may not be the final
- 6.2.6.3 The audio recording of oral reasons for judgment may not be the fina version of the reasons for judgment. In the event a transcript of oral reasons for judgment is ordered, the draft will be provided to the judge to review and edit. The oral reasons for judgment are not final until they have been transcribed, edited and signed by the judicial officer who gave them.
- 6.2.7 Settlement conferences/case conferences
- 6.2.8 Audio recording of courtroom before or after court is in session.
